Braille literacy among blind school-age children

United States, legally blind students — commonly cited figures

Share of legally blind school-age children reading Braille fluently. Over half of today's blind students are identified as non-readers.